This document sets out Pendal Australia's approach to Financial Services Council (FSC) Standard No 23: Principles of Internal Governance and Asset Stewardship (the Standard). As a member of the FSC, standards set by the FSC are mandatory. The Standard applies to FSC Members who undertake the role of asset managers in setting and achieving best practice in fulfilling their fiduciary responsibilities. The key principles of the Standard are:

- Organisational and investment approach;
- Internal governance; and
- Asset stewardship.

This document sets out Pendal Australia's organisational and investment approach, and its approach to internal governance and asset stewardship. These Principles apply to all portfolios for which Pendal Australia acts as investment manager or adviser.

An outline of JOHCM's Stewardship Policy is published on the JOHCM website.

3. Organisational and investment approach

3.1 About Pendal Australia

Pendal Australia operates a multi-boutique structure that provides for full investment autonomy. This multi-boutique structure offers its investment professionals an entrepreneurial working environment, defined by clear accountability for investment returns and transparency of rewards. Pendal Australia believes that this business model also ensures the strong alignment of the goals of its investment teams with those of its clients.

Pendal Australia does not subscribe to a ‘house view’ but rather allows each boutique the freedom to apply their own discretion in determining its investment process and philosophy. Therefore, there is no influence from management over any boutique’s investment decision.

Pendal Australia’s overarching principle in its investment approach is to always put our clients’ interest first. This fiduciary responsibility underpins our relationship with clients and every decision we make on their behalf. This principle also guides Pendal Australia’s approach to governance, both for itself and the companies in which it invests.

Additionally, Pendal Australia employs a risk and performance oversight process on each investment strategy that provides a high level of internal governance across its clients’ portfolios.

The investment decisions of Pendal Australia’s investment boutiques are underpinned by Pendal Australia’s full support platform that includes operations, legal services, client services, IT, risk and compliance, risk management, sales and marketing. This model allows investment managers to focus their efforts on what they do best; investing for Pendal Australia’s clients.

Building long-term client partnerships stands at the centre of everything we do and we recognise that trust is earned by delivering results and partnering with our clients to meet their needs.

3.2 Purpose and values

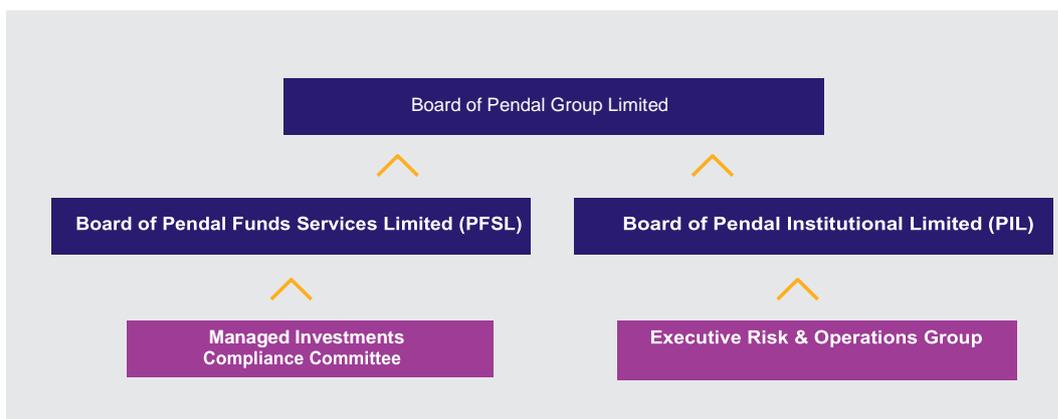

Pendal Australia’s primary purpose as an investment manager is to improve people’s lives through market leading investment management.

As a fiduciary and a corporate citizen we recognise our responsibility extends beyond delivering sustainable returns to our clients and shareholders. Our actions can impact upon the environment, our stakeholders and the community both directly and indirectly (through our ability to influence the practices in the entities in which we invest). We have both a duty and an interest in managing this influence.

5. Internal governance

5.1 Managing our clients' interests and conflicts

Pendal Australia has adopted a set of policies to which all employees must adhere to which promote transparency, fair dealing and the protection of stakeholder interests.

A number of policies and procedures are in place for the purpose of managing conflicts and ensuring client assets are managed in accordance with their investment strategies.

The Conflicts of Interest Policy provides a framework for managing actual, potential and perceived conflicts of interest either of the organisation or the employees themselves. The Pendal Australia insider trading and fraud control framework, which is supported by the Pendal Australia's Information Barriers Policy and the Managing Fraud and Corruption Policy, also provides guidance to employees about both legal and ethical conduct to prevent fraud and corruption. Both Policies and control frameworks emphasise the importance of acting in the best interests of Pendal Australia clients, funds, the organisation and the wider financial market and system. Other trading policies such as the Trade Error Policy further promote Pendal Australia acting in the best interests of its clients and the market as a whole.

5.2 Corporate governance overview

Pendal Australia's commitment to exceeding industry standards means we actively maintain corporate governance policies across every aspect of our operations. Our corporate governance policies are considered in light of the ASX Corporate Governance Council's Corporate Governance Principles and Recommendations (Fourth Edition) and other relevant standards or guidelines.

Pendal Australia has embedded a set of policies and internal controls within our Governance Framework to ensure ethical decision making, transparency and that client assets are managed in accordance with investment objectives.

In addition, the Pendal Group publishes a Corporate Governance Statement each year which outlines Pendal Group's corporate governance framework and policies.

5.3 Ethical conduct

The Pendal Group Code of Conduct (the Code) establishes the principles that embody the core company values of integrity, honesty, respect, courage, teamwork and high performance. The Code seeks to guide employee and director decision making and behaviour, requiring them to observe and adhere to clearly articulated standards of corporate and individual behaviour, which expects they will:

- Act with honesty and integrity;
- Respect the law and act accordingly;
- Respect confidentiality and not misuse information;
- Work collaboratively as a team;
- Value and maintain professionalism;
- Appropriately manage conflicts of interest; and
- Strive to be a good corporate citizen and achieve community respect.

5.4 Personal account trading

Pendal Australia has adopted the Trading in PDL Securities Policy governing trading in PDL securities by directors and employees, and a Personal Account Trading Policy which governs trading in other securities by directors and employees. These policies set out the applicable laws and procedures to be followed when dealing and trading in securities, including notification and clearance procedures.

Directors and employees are not permitted to deal in any securities where they are in possession of price sensitive information which is not generally available to the market and must not provide such price sensitive information to other persons who may use such information to trade in securities. In addition, Directors and employees must not trade in Pendal shares or other securities during specified blackout periods.

5.5 Risk management and compliance

Under the Pendal Group Risk Management Framework, Pendal Australia is responsible for identifying and managing its risks and meeting legislative requirements, industry codes, organisation, corporate governance and ethical standards and community expectations.

To ensure these responsibilities are met, Pendal Australia has implemented a Risk Management Framework that ensures the interaction of governance, responsibilities, risk management, controls and processes operate to manage Pendal Australia's strategic, regulatory, financial, operational and environmental, social and governance risks. Essential to the Risk Framework is Board and Committee oversight and the involvement of various Pendal Australia departments who carry out monitoring and review functions.

The Head of Risk & Compliance reports to the Chief Executive Officer, Pendal Australia and the Chief Risk Officer, Pendal Group and is responsible for establishing risk management procedures assuring the Pendal Board that major business risks are managed appropriately. Individual accountability is reinforced by regular training, and ensuring roles, responsibilities and delegations of authorities are clearly stated.

Pendal Australia requires all employees bear the responsibility for risk management and compliance through their adherence to policies, guidelines, procedures and internal controls in their management of business risks. These responsibilities form a continuing part of their ongoing accountability.

The key elements of this framework include:

- Policies and procedures are developed and approved by the Executive Risk & Operations Group outlining the guidelines, controls and procedures required for the business to meet regulatory and fiduciary obligations;
- Business functions participate in the development of the procedures and controls required to mitigate identified risks;
- The procedures are enacted through a combination of automated systems and manual procedures and controls;
- The Risk & Compliance team independently monitor the performance of procedures and controls performed by the business;
- Appropriate reporting of risk and compliance activities and reviews are regularly submitted to the Committee for discussion and analysis; and
- Escalation procedures for issues that fall within the Risk Management Framework to ensure the Pendal Australia Boards and relevant Committees receive adequate and timely information to allow a continuing assessment of the control environment.

6. Policy framework

Pendal Australia's Risk Management Framework is supported by a range of policies and guidelines. The policies are reviewed on an annual and biennial basis, according to the policy Review Schedule managed by Risk & Compliance, as well as on an as required basis. Policies are also reviewed in relation to prior year issues, new or amended legislation and regulations or new business processes. Key policies supporting the framework are:

6.1 Error correction policy

Pendal Australia's objective is to handle trade errors proactively when they come to light, to take steps to minimise the likelihood of errors and to promptly and accurately identify less obvious trade errors.

Pendal Australia's Trade Error policy is designed to incorporate the general principles of Pendal Australia's fiduciary duties to ensure that Pendal Australia will not profit from any gain arising from a trading error made by Pendal Australia, providing clarity and transparency to Pendal Australia's clients and other stakeholders as to the treatment of trade errors.

6.2 Brokerage and commissions

Pendal Australia utilises the services of brokers for activities such as trade execution and research. Pendal Australia's policy is that it does not engage in alternative brokerage arrangements. This means that Pendal Australia does not receive benefits from brokers or cause brokers to provide benefits to third parties, other than in relation to the provision of research to Pendal Australia by the broker or third party.

6.3 Fair asset valuation and pricing

Pendal Australia's Unit Pricing Discretions Policy sets out the principles in relation to how Pendal Australia will exercise the discretions allowed under the constitution of each Fund in relation to the application and withdrawal price of units where discretions may include the time at which unit prices are calculated, the timing of valuation of assets and liabilities and determining a valuation method. Valuation Policies and Procedures are in place with Pendal Australia's outsourced providers to ensure all units are valued in a timely and fair manner. Assets are valued with reference to their most recent market values, according to ordinary market practices. The policies and procedures also set out valuation methods in circumstances where market values are unavailable. In valuing the assets and liabilities of each fund, Pendal Australia applies valuation practices which are consistent with ordinary commercial practice and industry standards. The financial statements of all Pendal Group funds are audited annually by external auditors.

6.4 Best execution and trade allocation

Pendal Australia seeks to obtain best execution for our clients and to execute trades on the most favourable terms. Pendal Australia's Best Execution & Trade Allocation Policy is in place to ensure our dealing team takes all reasonable steps to execute trades on the best terms. The Policy Pendal Australia has in place ensures that trades are allocated fairly. The Policy sets out the factors to be considered in placing orders, including price, cost, speed and quality of order execution, financial status, responsibility and solvency of the counterparty, market impact of the transaction and the quality and efficiency of the settlement process post execution.

6.5 Remuneration

Pendal Group's Global Reward Framework is based on three principles that are directly aligned to our business strategy and corporate vision, balancing short term achievement and long term performance. Firstly, remuneration is weighted towards medium and long term reward, providing an ownership mindset and aligning our employees to our shareholders. The second principle is performance accountability for delivering annual business results and is reflected in our performance management practices and how we generate annual incentive pools. The Board and Group Chief Executive Officer play an active role in determining key financial and conduct expectations for the business and employees. Thirdly, recruiting exceptional talent relies on market benchmarking and competitive positioning, paying for skills and reflecting day to day responsibilities.

Our Remuneration Policy is framed by these three principles and includes a reward structure that consists of both cash and equity. There is a weighting toward long term reward through employee share ownership that strengthens employee interests to those of our shareholders. Critically, risk management is a serious consideration for Pental Group and is a key performance metric when determining employee variable remuneration outcomes.

6.6 Whistleblower policy

Pental Group's Whistleblower Policy aims to provide a reporting framework for Pental Group employees to confidentially and anonymously (where chosen) escalate any concerns in relation to wrongdoing, without fear of reprisals or disadvantage in the workplace. Pental Group's stance on whistleblowing reinforces our commitment to:

- Identifying and responding to concerns and fostering a culture of continuous improvement;
- Encouraging the reporting of wrongdoing;
- Providing guidance on how to raise concerns about wrongdoing and how they will be investigated; and
- Reassuring anyone who raises a concern that they can do so without fear of being personally disadvantaged.

For those who prefer to raise their concern externally, all employees have access to an independent and confidential hotline.

6.7 Complaints and dispute resolution

Resolving investor complaints is a priority for Pental Australia. The Complaints Handling Policy sets out the way in which a complaint should be dealt with and is based on core principles including that Pental Australia respects our investors' and potential investors' right to complain, that our investors and potential investors are entitled to a prompt, respectful and fair response to their complaint, and to be informed about our processes and decisions.

We are committed to ensuring complaints are appropriately handled, both to improve client satisfaction and quality of service and to comply with regulatory requirements. In addition to internal handling of complaints, investors may also consult the financial services industry external dispute resolution service called the Australian Financial Complaints Authority of which Pental Fund Services Limited (PFSL) is a member.

7. Training and development

Pental Australia is committed to driving greater business performance and engagement of employees by providing opportunities for employees to continually grow and develop, ensuring that employees who are required to maintain specific qualifications and/or compliance with external regulations continually stay abreast of relevant developments.

All Pental Australia employees must undertake mandatory compliance training on commencement of employment and annually thereafter. Pental Australia, either via its own employees or the use of external service providers, also provides ongoing internal training relevant to specific business units.

Pendal Australia supports the ongoing education of its employees by assisting them financially and with study leave to engage in formal study throughout their employment.

8. Asset stewardship

8.1 Principles

Pendal Australia believes there is a strong link between a well-governed organisation, which considers a full range of risks, and overall business success. Attention to ESG performance can improve the quality and consistency of long-term wealth creation.

Pendal Australia considers asset stewardship, including engagement with investee companies, not only as an important aspect of the investment decision-making process, but as a means through which to manage risk and drive improved outcomes. We recognise that we have the potential to influence investee company practices by virtue of significant holdings in those investee companies, which are held on behalf of our clients. We take a thoughtful and deliberate approach to asset stewardship.

Consistent with the philosophy underpinning our multi-boutique structure, we do not subscribe to a “house” approach to investee company engagement. We believe the best framework is for each investment team to develop its own distinct approach to engagement that is tailored to their asset class and client base. Pendal Australia supports this engagement framework by empowering each investment team to leverage cross-boutique synergies through a collaborative exchange of information and resources.

8.2 Monitoring of company performance

Effective monitoring of company performance, both from a financial and ESG perspective, is an essential element of our investment approach. As active investors, our portfolio managers engage in regular dialogue with investee companies and issuers to ensure we understand all aspects of their business.

As part of our engagement with investee companies, we:

- Meet regularly with the board/senior management (including both meetings as part of companies’ reporting rounds, and one-on-one meetings) and seek to understand their strategic priorities and any areas of particular interest or concern;
- Keep up to date with each company’s financial and ESG performance, the main drivers of each, and risk factors (both internal and external) which, or may in the future, impact these;
- Ensure, on an ongoing basis, that the leadership of each investee company (both management and board) and its corporate governance structures adhere to best practice (taking into account the jurisdiction in which they operate); and
- Exercise our voting rights in a manner which supports our clients’ best interests. Our full approach to proxy voting is set out in our Proxy Voting Policy which is published on our website: www.pendalgroup.com.

8.3 Active ownership and engagement

Active ownership is a natural extension of our active investment management process. Pendal Australia engages in an ongoing dialogue with the management of the companies in which we invest to manage risk, effect change and protect value over the long term. We are committed to transparency in our active ownership practices and provide comprehensive information to clients such as disclosing proxy voting on our website.¹

¹ <https://www.pendalgroup.com/about/corporate-governance/proxy-voting/>

Direct engagement with investee companies is an important part of our bottom-up security selection process. How we prioritise our engagements is based on a materiality consideration that takes into account the asset class, the degree to which such issues may impact risk/return characteristics of an investment and the degree of alignment with the needs of the underlying client base. This process includes a detailed analysis by the investment teams utilising both internally and externally sourced information (such as third party research and data), including ESG data.

Engagements are typically conducted on a case-by-case basis, giving consideration to an assessment of the matter at hand and its materiality. In our engagement we always encourage a two way dialogue. Should engagement efforts result in an unsatisfactory response, we will pursue other channels (such as proxy voting) and if we believe there is a threat to shareholder value, we will divest from the security. The key consideration is to act in the best interests of the client.

In addition to our direct engagement, Pental Australia's asset stewardship is supported by Regnan's collaborative ESG engagement and advocacy program. Regnan, Pental Group's dedicated ESG business, offers specialised research, engagement and advisory services. Regnan provides these services to external parties in addition to supporting the internal responsible investment needs of the Pental Group. We consider this to be an important complement to our own active ownership practices, and a means to ensure that emerging ESG issues benefit from sufficient attention and expertise. More on Regnan's engagement program, including annual reports on engagement activity, can be found on Regnan's website (www.regnan.com).

8.4 Escalation to Boards or Management

Pental Australia routinely meets with the senior executives of our investee companies as part of our monitoring and engagement practices. In circumstances where we raise a concern and it is not adequately dealt with, we may seek further meetings with the company's chair or other non-executive director(s).

We may also exercise our voting rights to influence management. We also may decide to sell down, or sell out of a security completely if a company does not adequately address our concerns, if we feel that is in the best interests of our clients.

Decisions about whether or not to escalate are made on a case-by-case basis, taking into account our view on the materiality (the degree to which such issues may impact the risk/return characteristics of an investment and align with client interests).

Triggers for escalation can include:

- Material concern over executive remuneration, in particular where we do not believe remuneration structures are appropriate, well aligned to the company's strategy, or in shareholders' interests;
- Concerns over management failure in relation to strategy;
- Lack of responsiveness in relation to board composition (typically where we feel boards are not sufficiently independent, or do not have the right diversity of skills, background and experience); or
- Where a company is subject to legal fines or censure, allegations of corruption, or there is evidence of misconduct; or
- Poor management of social issues, including human rights, labour issues and key stakeholder relations; or
- Failure to adequately manage environmental issues.

8.5 Environmental, Social and Governance factors

Pendal Australia believes consideration of ESG issues can provide valuable insight into the financial performance of an investment. We take ESG factors into account as part of our active investment and decision-making processes, in the same way as other potential risk or growth factor.

Our Responsible Investment Philosophy and Approach outlines our core beliefs in relation to ESG and responsible investment, including the belief that our actions and decisions can impact practices in the entities in which we invest and that we have both a duty and an interest in managing this influence. Further, the way management handles ESG issues can provide valuable insights regarding exposure to negative incidents or emerging opportunities. In our view, ESG matters are best dealt with by ensuring appropriate governance structures are in place, and that company boards incorporate a range of experience and backgrounds, thereby ensuring proper oversight and improved transparency for investors to better assess performance.

In terms of our ESG integration, we use a mixture of proprietary ESG models, research from Regnan, and specialist third-party data. Our analysis on ESG informs our engagements where relevant. Conversely, learnings made in engagements flow through to our ESG analysis.

A comprehensive description of our approach to responsible investing and the manner in which we engage with investee companies on ESG factors can be found in our Responsible Investment Philosophy and Approach statement published on our website: www.pendalgroup.com.

8.6 Proxy voting

Our proxy voting decisions are made on a case-by-case basis. Any votes are cast in the best interests of clients.

Pendal Australia regards the exercise of proxy voting authority as an important aspect of investment decision making. We do not involve ourselves in the day to day management of the companies in which we invest. However, we recognise that we can influence company policy on matters of corporate governance by virtue of the shareholdings that we manage on behalf of our clients.

To assist in decision-making, Pendal Australia conducts research internally (including research from Regnan where relevant) and also uses the resources of an independent external proxy advisory service. Pendal Australia may also consider studies of corporate governance and other proxy voting issues and/or analyses of shareholder and management proposals from a number of different sources.

Where a resolution is deemed to be contentious, the Analyst or Portfolio Manager responsible will consider all the relevant information, including external reports received from corporate governance advisers, and will often engage with the relevant company to obtain further details or clarification on the matter prior to making a final decision.

A comprehensive description of our approach to proxy voting is contained in Pendal Australia's Proxy Voting Policy, published on our website: www.pendalgroup.com.

9. Involvement with other investors, industry groups and associations

In addition to engaging directly with companies, Pendal Australia also engages collaboratively with other stakeholders such as other investors and relevant industry groups. This complements our own direct engagements as well as enables us to participate in shaping policy and regulatory developments that are important to our clients, business and other stakeholders. Collaborative engagement initiatives often relate to improving corporate governance standards, improving transparency and disclosure and better management of specific ESG risks or opportunities. Collaborative engagements may be company-specific or industry related.

We have a formal process for identifying and prioritising collaborative engagements that has oversight from the CEO, Pental Australia and the head of each investment boutique and investment teams. This is to ensure collaborative engagements are:

- In the best interest of our clients;
- Aligned with Pental Australia's investment philosophy;
- Deemed to be relevant and value-additive to our investments; and
- Deemed material enough to allocate resources.

Pental Australia and Regnan also maintain various memberships and associations with industry groups and associations which allow us to engage with other industry participants to advance innovation and thought leadership and enhance our awareness of key industry changes and challenges. Please refer to our website here: <https://www.pentalgroup.com/about/corporate-governance/industry-representation/>

10. Client engagement, education and communication

Pental Australia engages and educates clients through various forums including:

- Meetings with clients' management;
- Publication of newsletters, webinars and articles to communicate and inform our clients and the public about our investment insights, processes and stewardship activities;
- Regular open client forums to provide investment updates and allow for active client participation;
- Hosting events focusing on ESG issues relevant to our investments and the needs and interests of our clients; and
- Participating in industry publications and speaking at industry conferences, roundtables and education forums.
